After a hiatus of almost two years, the Mount Mercy musicians and dancers returned to the Mercy Center stage for the school's Christmas Concert. The Women's Choir opened the show with three musical selections. Solos were sung by sophomore Vayana Stoyanova and senior Adrianna Awald of Gowanda, as well as freshman Erin Hudson (Buffalo). The school's two dance classes, under the guidance of teacher and alumna Justine Kish Podsiadlo, each performed a dance routine and the show concluded with a performance from the school's show choir, renamed the Mount Mercy Sparks. The routine featured freshman soloist Amelia Cook (Hamburg). The music students were directed by Mount Mercy music teacher Grace Greenan, also an alumna and former member of the school's music program.
