German Culture Comes To Mount Mercy

This year several students from Germany are spending four months at Mount Mercy Academy to improve their English speaking skills and experience American culture. Two of the students have decided to return the favor and bring German food and culture to Buffalo.

Jana Reiter and Maybritt Henke talked with the Mount Mercy Foreign Language Club about their culture and hometowns. They compared the German and American educational systems, family life and everyday life. They also taught their American classmates a few simple German phrases and shared a German dish with the club members. Germans do not name their dishes like Americans do, but they shared a dish made from potatoes, eggs and spinach.

Approximately twenty –five Mount Mercy students took advantage of this unique opportunity to learn first-hand about another culture.
