Samantha Lawicki is Mount Mercy's MoneySKILL Mania Winner

Mount Mercy's Personal Finance students participated in the annual MoneySKILL Mania contest sponsored by the University of Buffalo and M & T Bank. Thirty-four of Dawn Robertson's students joined in with 800 other Western New York students from 23 different schools.

The competition took place during the month of April and consisted of 40 multiple choice questions based on the material covered in the MoneySKILL program or on a current event. All schools are given the same questions. Current event questions are based on happenings in finance and the global economy during the past year.

The questions must be answered during a class and on a computer. Students have one hour to complete the test questions.

Samantha Lawicki, a junior from Buffalo and the daughter of Martiana Lawicki was the highest scoring student from Mount Mercy and received a 50 dollar Amazon gift card.
